Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Old Age Pensions and the Aged Poor: A Proposal In a previous volume* I brought together such facts as I had been able to collect as to the condition of the Aged Poor in England and Tales and I promised to deal later with proposals for their relief. Meanwhile, we have had the Report of the Royal Commission on the subject, and also that of a Committee of the House of Lords appointed with the Special object of carrying the question to a more definite conclusion. These reports yield only a negative result in so far as they neither approve of any of the schemes submitted, nor themselves suggest any other as more practical but, on the other hand, both reports recognize the existence of a state of things which still cries for remedy. More recently Bills for the establishment of pensions in old age have been presented to Parliament, and [on more than one occasion have been carried by large majorities on second reading while the question of cost has been referred to and reported on by an important departmental committee representing the Government offices chiefly concerned in any such contemplated measures; the heavy cost being regarded as the main obstacle, and by many as the only objection, to these proposals. In the present volume (first published in 1899) I briefly recapitulate the facts and sketch the measure I should myself suggest. The work above referred to concluded with a summary of the facts and deductions therefrom, and part of this I venture to repeat by way of introduction to the present volume. The Aged Poor: Condition. Macmillan, 1894. J l l B r l , l i . Inf). The...
